Sherrod Library of East Tennessee State University has several special collections that relate to law and political science. Additionally, many of the newer legal resources are located online. There are two legal online law databases available at Sherrod Library. Lexis-Nexis and Westlaw provide access to all 50 state codes, legal reference materials, cases and legislation.

The Government Documents/Law Department DOES NOT give legal advice. Advising people what the law is, how it applies to their situation, interpreting the law, assistance in completing legal documents, and making referrals to a specific attorney constitute giving legal advice. Library staff can provide assistance in identifying, locating, and using resources within the Law Library Collection.

There are many online resources available to the public which can be accessed from anywhere. You can find more details about these additional resources below:
